Entry sign competition winners announced

Council has chosen the winning entrants from its boundary/welcome sign competition, which attracted more than 20 submissions.

The winner of the professional section is Barry Haynes and the winner of the amateur section is Jade Ballantyne.

Council will be acknowledging the unsuccessful entrants with certificates of appreciation.

In assessing the entries Council felt that the winning designs could be developed further and has arranged to meet with the competition winners over the next few weeks before releasing the final designs.

The winning entry for the professional category is likely to be chosen for Council's entry signs and the amateur category for the locality signs.
